

The Center Robert C. Powers

October 9, 2009

Why Change Health Care?

Think back. When was the last time there was a furor over changing health care?
Hillary--in the Clinton Administration.

Today, 83% of the American people say they are happy with their health care and don't want it changed. Particularly, they don't want the government more involved than it already is.

Why do the Democrats want to change health care when there is NOT a popular mandate to do it? Are they obsessed?

Why do they make claims that people want it when they don't? Do they lie?

Is it all about gaining government power over the individual?

Is it all about redistributing wealth a la socialism?

The evidence is "out there".

You don't have to be blind to see it.

If they cram this thing down our throats, you will have even more reason than irresponsible spending and weakening the nation to vote them out in November 2010.

Keep it before you. Don't let them get away with selling you resort land in a swamp!
